FAMILIAL DRUG TRAFFICKING RING DISMANTLED

*Major Trafficker Employed Siblings, Wife and Girlfriend to Help Run Drug Business
Allegedly Supplied Dealers Operating Out of Major Mark Park
Eleven Charged, Three as Major Traffickers*

Queens District Attorney Melinda Katz announced that 11 defendants were arraigned on drug and gun charges following a 15-month investigation into a sprawling drug trafficking organization that reached from Jamaica to suburban Suffolk and Westchester Counties and involved several members of the same family. The investigation included a series of undercover drug buys inside a Jamaica park and wiretaps on defendants' phones.

The investigation, including search warrants executed at seven residences and three vehicles, resulted in the seizure of one and a half kilograms of heroin laced with fentanyl; more than 10,000 glassines of heroin; four kilograms of cocaine; and more than 250 vials containing crack cocaine; eight guns, including an assault weapon stashed in a hidden compartment in a storage shed; and $140,587 in cash.

District Attorney Katz said: "Those who peddle poison are on notice. There is no higher priority for my office than to rid our communities of drugs and guns. This type of 'family business' will simply not pay. We will not relent in our efforts to dismantle trafficking rings and bring to justice those who put countless lives at risk by running open air drug markets. I'd like to thank members of my Major Economic Crimes Bureau, the NYPD, Yonkers and Suffolk County Police Departments and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service for their great work on this case."

Six of the defendants were arraigned in Supreme Court on December 7 and five additional defendants were arraigned in Criminal Court on December 6. (See Addendum)
